DEDICATED, community-minded volunteer Craig Rogerson feels most at home with the sand between his toes watching the waves.

As well as being president of the Clifton Beach Surf Life Saving Club, Rogerson, or "Rogo" as he is affectionately known by his most clubbies, is a volunteer surf life saver and officiates at carnivals.

"I signed up about 20 years ago, my daughter was seven at the time and she's still on patrol now," Rogerson says.

"It's a community down there and it's great to see the juniors coming through, enjoying themselves and learning life skills."

The land surveyor by day also raises money for Variety the Children's Charity.

"I do the TASBashes and I've helped build a couple of houses which have been auctioned off," he says.

"The good thing about Variety is that all the money we raise stays here in Tassie and you get to see where the money goes and meet some of the recipients which is fantastic seeing their smiles."

The next Surf Life Saving Tasmania event to be held in the south will be the Junior Statewide Championships held at Carlton Park, on February 27 and 28. For more information about joining a surf club in your local area contact www.slst.asn.au
